Shiny Moving Things

President's Message

Since you can ask the internet anything, I searched the question "When do children become interested in cars?" Social gender cues suggest that boys may develop this interest as early as age 3, but all children are attracted to the shiny colors and movement that cars embody as early as age 2.

I can't remember exactly when cars became more than just shiny moving objects to me, but it probably began in elementary school in the 1950's. I am far from a mechanical genius, but over the years, I've paid attention to auto makes, models, and years of production. Even on vacation trips—far and wide—interesting vehicles come into view.

Driving through northern Greece in 2024, our tour bus made a comfort stop at a gas station-restaurant in the town of Kozani. There, parked under the canopy toward the left side of the all-purpose building, was a 1959 Ford Fairlane sedan, green with a white roof. There were locals around who only spoke Greek, so there was no way to learn how the Ford got there or whether it was still in use.

In the fall of 2025, on a Danube River cruise sailing through Romania and Serbia, a tour guide talked about the Yugo. Made, in the end, in Serbia (after Yugoslavia began to disintegrate in 1991), the less-than-reliable Yugo was produced from 1980 to 2008. The guide shared a few Yugo jokes:

This April, on a tour of Scotland, I became acquainted with a car I didn't know before: the Morris Minor.

*1971 Morris Minor, Scotland

It was produced in England from 1948 until 1971, with more than 1.6 million cars, vans, and trucks sold. Our Scotsman tour leader, it turned out, buys and restores antique cars, and believed the sedan was a 1971 model, while the small panel van dates to the early 1950's.

Turn the page to witness that panel van

Cars and people interested in them are everywhere. On an earlier European river cruise, we had dinner one evening with two U.S. couples who owned antique automobiles one a 1960s Corvette, the other several 1970s-era cars. We enjoyed our visit with them.

Church Tour Reminder

GREETING

Namaste, pronounced nah-muh-stheh, is a Hindu greeting that means "I bow to the divine in you." The word is spoken with palms together, fingers touching and pointed upward, with thumbs at the sternum; accompanied by a slight bow of the head, or a bend forward at the waist.

DRESS CODE

Here's an important note about temple attire for the visit. Shoulders and legs should be completely covered, and shoes must be removed to visit the sanctuary. (Wear socks) So, no shorts or open tops. Short sleeves are OK, and women can wear either long skirts or pants. For anyone who is unable to easily remove their shoes, they will provide acceptable shoe covers.

From the Editor's Desk

Have you ever noticed how car people find each other?

In this issue, one of our members shares a story about spotting a 1959 Ford Fairlane parked under a canopy at a gas station in Kozani, Greece. Halfway around the world, and there it was — a piece of automotive history just waiting to be noticed. On a river cruise through Romania and Serbia, a tour guide's jokes about a Yugo sparked a conversation. In Scotland, a restored Morris Minor turned a bus tour into a car club meeting.

Car people always find each other. We can't help it.

That got me thinking. If our love of antique automobiles travels that well across oceans, across languages, across generations, imagine what happens when we share it at locally:

- When we mention the club to a neighbor.
- When we post a photo from a show.
- When we hand someone a flyer and say, "You should come see this."

Das Awkscht Fescht is coming, and this year is shaping up to be something special. We'll be honoring the memory of Ray Fischer, welcoming Donald Hawk, former manager for Dale Earnhardt, and looking ahead to a 2027 Triumph feature that's already generating excitement. The race car shirt design has been chosen, the tents are planned, and the registration sheets are out.

My job at the Fescht is social media, which means telling the story so that people who weren't there wish they had been, and people who were there want to come back.

What's happening in 2027
- Read On

But honestly? That's everyone's job.

Talk about the Fescht.

Share a post.

Bring someone new.

Because car people find each other, but only if we give them something to find.

~Cheri Dotterer

See you at the show.

Das Awkscht Fescht

Our Fescht is coming along well, and it is now the time to secure vehicle registrations for 2026 and a feature car for 2027. Thanks to our management team of Susan, Lester, Leroy, Mike, Tim, Jeff, and Phyllis for accomplishing so much already. We selected a race car for the Fescht shirt: the number 87 Buick Regal owned and raced by Rick Karpeuk. Included with this article is a picture of that Buick Regal. Speedway displays will be set up at the Fescht by EMMR, Reading Fairgrounds Speedway Historic Society, and the Dorney Park Racing Club.

We redesigned and mailed the updated registration sheets. They include the 8 classes of feature vehicles, so we can better place them for the show. We will honor our late member, Ray Fischer, who was responsible for the race car class in AACA judging, raced his own car, and helped establish our relationship with the Eastern Museum of Motor Racing. Thanks to Judy Fischer and Wayne Tuck for organizing some of Ray's personal effects for display. Donald Hawk, former manager for Dale Earnhardt, will appear specially on Saturday, August 1.

Special thanks to Leroy and Vas Hinkle for purchasing a tent for day-of-show registration. We send our thoughts to Jim Peters, who was recently hurt in a motor vehicle collision. Our backup team will help erect the registration tents with Jim's supervision. Feature tents will be staffed by experts outside the Ontelaunee Club. Pete Trumbauer will arrange the race car tent. Dennis Martin will arrange the race motorcycle tent. Sponsors have committed to each tent, including Nancy Bischoff, Dennis Martin, and the Perkiomen Region of the MC.

For 2027, we continue working with the club on the feature car. Triumph will be the featured motorcycle. Al Hartman has agreed to help with this feature.

He is the principal Triumph collector in this area. It will be the 105th anniversary of Triumph. Please bring your ideas and entries for this year and 2027.

Das Awkscht Fescht Planning

Once again, I am requesting your help to complete the pin finding and preliminary vendor layout activities starting at 7 AM on Monday, July 20th. (Rain date: Tuesday, July 21, 7 AM)

I am also requesting your help completing the final vendor stake-out on Monday, July 27th. Please note that this year I plan to start at 7 AM instead of the 2 PM start time used in previous years.

This change is designed to help avoid the very high afternoon temperatures we have had to deal with in the past 2 years. (Rain date: Tuesday, July 28 at 7 AM)

As always, I am indebted to those of you who have been able to come out and help in the past, and I sincerely hope to see you again this year. If you have not been able to help in the past, please feel free to join us this year--- no experience is necessary and all efforts are greatly appreciated.

Together, we will once again make this a successful show.

If you have any questions please feel free to call me at 610-562-8387 or e-mail me at leroyhinkle@verizon.net.

Thank you.

Classic Parts, Modern Searches Motor Oil Is Motor Oil

I hope you have enjoyed my columns so far on finding parts. I have covered several ways to search, and hopefully one of them has been helpful to you. This month, I have a very simple – yet slippery – subject in mind. The kind that, the deeper you dig, raises more questions than it provides answers.

How many of you remember the old Valvoline commercial with the man in a funeral procession? He was driving, and his car trailed a cloud of blue smoke so thick the drivers behind him couldn't see. His declaration was, "Motor oil is motor oil." The point of the commercial, of course, was that not all oils are the same. If that was true, then it is even more true today.

In years gone by, many oils were made from Pennsylvania crude, originating from the western part of our state. That is no longer the only source. Many of the original brands we recognized have either disappeared or had their names sold to other refineries. Iconic brand refineries have been closed or dismantled. Declining oil production and rising oil transport costs have made Western Pennsylvania's fields unprofitable.

Today, motor oil is rapidly changing – moving away from mineral oil pumped from the ground toward synthetics blended from various sources. Sometimes the base is highly refined crude oil, treated with hydrogen, and wax is added. Some formulations use a mixture of ethylene gas and hydrogen. Others are derived in part from animal fats or from coal mixed with alcohol. There is a great deal to learn about this subject, and most of it is well above our heads, as most of us are not chemical engineers.

This is just the beginning. I am going to stop here for this month. Next month, I hope to focus on how changes in modern oils affect our older cars, and what kind of oil to choose for vehicles with flat-tappet camshafts. Have a good month.

~Jeff Dotterer

THINGS TO REMEMBER WHEN TOURING

- Always use and display your Ontelaunee Tour Banner. If you do not have one, you can purchase one for $5.00 each from Phyllis Peters, Membership Chairperson
- If you have a CB Radio, we usually use channel 7. This is a great way to stay in touch with others if problems arise.
- When driving on a tour, it is important that you try to keep the car behind you in your sight. This way, if there is a problem, the tour can stay together.
- Tourmasters should always drive at a moderate speed if possible, so a tour can be enjoyed.

Milk Bottle by Henry Gibson

“Programmatic” is, I believe, the technical term for a structure or vehicle that portrays a product or item. Another term would be “productmobile,” such as the Oscar Meyer Wienermobile. You get the idea – it was something to catch your eye, helping you to remember that product. Everybody knows what the Wienermobile is! Anyway, here’s another product mobile for you. This rolling advertisement was created by the Boyertown Auto Body Works and was mounted on a 1928 Model A Ford chassis.

This “milk bottle” truck was an advertising idea for Bethlehem, Pennsylvania’s Mowrer’s Dairy. It seems as if Clifton Mowrer, the dairy’s owner, was chock full of good marketing ideas. I found a patent assigned to him dated to 1934 for a portable refreshment booth. Another idea was the Mowrer’s Dairy Store, locally known as The Cup (there’s that programmatic shape again), “a popular milk and ice cream store.” That store operated from the late 1920s through the mid-1950s. That store (or Cup) proved so popular that it prompted many others – more than 25 – to be constructed and owned by Mowrer’s Dairy. With the combination of The Cup(s) and a milk bottle-shaped truck, I’m sure the residents of the area were quite familiar with Mowrer’s Dairy.

Reportedly, the pictured truck’s chassis was the first produced in Ford’s new Chester, Pennsylvania assembly plant. Although Ford started producing their new Model A’s in August 1927, it was almost a year later until truck chassis were being shipped out, on account of the popularity of their all-new car. Essentially, the Model A truck, produced between 1928 and 1931, were the same as their passenger cars. They all had 103” wheelbases and also had the same 200 cubic inch four-cylinder engine. Although these vehicles could be bought as a pickup, sedan delivery or panel truck, they could also be bought as a chassis only, which is how our pictured vehicle started out.

In the late 1920s, new materials and new design techniques were being innovated in Boyertown. Helping to push these changes was Paul Hafer, the young son of Frank Hafer, then president of Boyertown Auto Body Works. Paul recently joined the workforce of the body company and was met with some opposition to his ideas. One of these ideas was prompted by Clifton Mowrer, who happened to be a family friend of the Hafers. To promote his business, he wanted a truck to be designed to resemble a giant milk bottle. Paul got busy and designed what you see in these pictures. Apparently this body was the first one designed by Paul, whose entire design background was some classes at Reading High School. Veteran body craftsmen really didn’t want to hear how to do their work from a kid. I can just hear it now, “We never did it that way before!” After some starts and stops, Paul convinced them to try it, and now we can see how it turned out. Structurally, the truck’s “milk bottle” shape was similar to the fuselage of a period airplane, with a wood frame and a covering of either canvas or aluminum. The construction of the structure exceeded the recommended weight of the truck causing all four tires to show a little bulging.

What happened to Mowrer’s Dairy? They were sold to Breyer’s Ice Cream Company (my Dad’s favorite, by the way) in 1952. The pictured truck? Who knows, but a replica of it is currently being created by area craftsmen. I couldn’t find anything about the Ford dealer, Foering Motor Company, shown on the spare tire cover, but its location is presently a high school parking lot. Oh, one last item – all those Cups. There’s a few left, including one in Boyertown! It has gone through several owners since it was built, and was used by a locally known caterer, but the locals still call it “The Cup.”
